PACTS ABOUT FILTH. Diphtheria Traced to a Birt Dumping

The fact that there is an intimate relaon between the gaseous exhalations of eases, receives almost daily confirmation. The following was written by a correspondent of The Sanitary Engineer:

"A poor, hard working Irish family, named Donneily, has lived for several years in a small house, situated on the south side of the Boston road, near the Southern boulevaid. In January last two of the children were attacked by diphtheria, and both died; while the father was at the same time rendered helpless by chilis the same time rendered helpless by chills and fever. FOUL PRIVIES AND TYPHOID PRYER. communication to The Philadelphia Medi-al Times, refers to recent discussions in England relative to the causes of typhoid fever, and cites a group of cases where no specific contagion could be traced, but where other factors were in action. The cloacal arrangements of the district were very primitive; the privy was generally a pit, never emptied, and filled to the seat with the accumulations of years. Dr. Low, of England, holding that typhoid fever gorms may be in time developed from successive crops of bacteria, cites the conclusion of Burdon-Sanderson, that it is possible to proceed from an inflammation of purely non-infectious origin, to the artificial induction of a process of the most intense violence in relation to which Dr. Fothergill argues that "diarrhost most intense violence in relation to which Dr. Fothergill argues that "diarrhosal diacharge received into a foul garden privy in the first instance, cause turber and severer attacks of diarrhosa," till the summit is reached, and typhoid fever, a specific contagious disease, is produced. Dr. Low cites an instance where ten persons occupied a double cottage, with privies in the rear which had not been cleaned for more than a year. Seven persons were attacked with violent sickness and diarrhosa, and three died. So soon as the sanitary authree died. So soon as the sanitary au-thories had the privice cleaned the sickseas ceased; and three persons who never esorted to them escaped completely. He resorted to them escaped completers. He relates a case which was seen by a second physician and pronounced typhoid, where there had been a case ending fatally and certified as diarrhea, in the same house eleven months before.

His sim is to obtain emigrants from the better class of the Iriel people, who cannot endure the eccercion being used by the British Government. firm was sold at auction, and in this manner Wilkeson has become the owner of the contract for "Beecher's Life of Ohrist." He now intends to make the latter fulfill the contract or meet the consequences of damages. Beecher, in his reply to the complaint, swears that he does not owe the complainant anything. He has, however, $10,000, but perhaps in Beecher's opinion this does not constitute a debt. Wilkeson considers the contract worth $50,000. A life of Christ by Beecher (before he lost his reputation) would have had an immeuse sale. Fleetwood's "Life of Christ," which is an inferior work, paid its publishers $100,000, and Beecher's its publishers $100,000, and Beecher book was much more popular.

Real Estate at New York.

New York, March 26.—There is considerable doing here in a quiet way in real estate. The demand for houses and lots is eatter. The demand for houses and lots is eattened in a quiet way in real estate. The demand for houses and lots is eattened in a quiet way in real estate. The demand for houses and lots is eattened in the market for improvement. It is obvious to any one that if lots east of the park in the aide streets sell at from $15,000 to $25,000 apiece, and from $80,000 on Fifth avenue, there is no reason why prices on the west side should not, within a few years, approximate these figures. Some sharp real estate men have their dyes fixed on the plain north of the park, between Fourth and Eighth avenues. It is all ready for occupancy, and a few years more will probably see it filled up with houses of a medium type, none very costly nor very poor. There has been no difficulty in renting eligibly situated houses at advances over last year's prices of from 5 to 15 per cent. There is a deficiency of very poor and couly houses, due to the infinx of fith people from California and elsewhere.

about the wonderful change that is noticeable in him. His elastic step and great springinees is gone and he is now a bent-shouldered, overworked, and tired out man. It is wonderful how much he can stand and has stood. He has been kept going constantly since his name was first mentioned for the presidency in 1875. During the year that followed he was kept busy in the matter of trying to pay off his friends for the way they stood up for him in the convention that nominated Hayes. The time between then and the convention of 1879, he was kept susy in working up his own chances for a nomination. Failing in this, he jumped to the front in support of Garfield, determined that if he could not get the best place he would get the next best, and thus got even with those who had stood in the way of his ambition. He succeeded in getting the leadership of Garfield's Cabinet, and now occupies a position as premier that many would rather have than the Presidency itself. Its honors are international as well as national, and it gives a man a chance to be felt in all countries as well as in this. But in doing all of this, Mr. Blaine has over-worked himself. His house is open at all hours of the night as well as the day. No one knows when he gets a rest, as the gas burns as brightly in his room after midnight as it does during the earlier part of the night. This thing cannot last all the time, and unless Mr. Blaine gives public notice that he will not transact business except during office hours, unless on special invitation, his condition is not ness except during oline bodie, due so a special invitation, his condition is not likely to improve. As it is, he can do the work of a half dozen first-class men, but there is a limit to all things, and he, like many others, may not discover it until too late.

The unfortunate publishers, in carrying out so grand a work, had employed some of the best artists in the country, and invested a large sum in illustrations. After the expenditure had reached $50,000 they were obliged to suspend. Their appeal, "Mr. Bescher you are raining us," was of no avail. our readers. He says: "In the fail of 1870 I was taken with a violent bleeding of the lungs, followed by a severe cough. I soon began to loose my appetite and flesh I was so weak at one time that i could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1871 was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollar ain doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. William Hall's Balsam for the Lungs. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when to my surprise and gratification I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have for the past three years. "I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one inflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced to take Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, and be convinced that Consumption can be streed. I have taken two bottles, and can positively say that it has done more good than all he other medicines I have taken since my slokness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared and I shall soon be able tog to work." Sold by drugists.
